AYURVEDA - A COMPLETE HEALTH SCIENCE

Ayurveda is the ancient Indian Medical Science which has been very effective and a popular system of medicine in India for ages. It is wholly indigenous health system based on Vedic lore, in which medicines prepared from herbs and other material available in the surrounding environment are used. The characteristics and special features, health habits etc of the individual are considered in case study. Not only cure but prevention of diseases is the essence of this system. It considers the human life not in fragments but in totality with due and proper attention to diet, exercises, seasonal changes in climate etc.

As a result of the impact of western culture on the Indian society, this vital system was neglected for last few decades. Fortunately the same is now getting revived. People, not only from India but also from many countries of the world including the developed Countries of Europe and America are very much impressed by Ayurveda. There is vast scope for Ayurveda in the coming years of the new millennium as people are turning in large numbers towards it. There is great demand for Ayurvedic medicines and practitioners all over the world. Hence graduates and post graduates in Ayurveda have bright economic future and a socially respected noble career.
